

The key COPE guidelines followed by this journal:

1. Authorship and Contributor ship: - Authors should meet the criteria for authorship as per international standards, contributing substantially to the research and manuscript preparation. All authors must consent to submission and publication, and any significant contributors should be acknowledged appropriately.
2. Plagiarism and Originality: - Originality of research is paramount, and authors should ensure that their work is not plagiarized and properly cited. They are expected to share their plagiarism report from valid sites, along with the article submitted.
3. Conflicts of Interest and Funding Disclosure: - Authors, reviewers, and editors must disclose any potential conflicts of interest that could influence the research or publication process. Funding sources, financial interests, or affiliations that could present a conflict of interest should be transparently disclosed.
4. Peer Review Process: - The journal has a rigorous peer review process involving experts in the respective fields to assess the quality, validity, and relevance of submissions. Reviewers maintain confidentiality, provide constructive feedback, and declare any conflicts of interest.
5. Publication Ethics and Integrity: - Uphold ethical standards in research, publication, and authorship, adhering to academic integrity principles. Retractions, corrections, and clarifications will be promptly issued for any errors, misconduct, or unethical behaviour identified post-publication.
6. Data and Image Integrity: - Authors must provide accurate data and ensure that research findings are presented truthfully without manipulation or falsification. Any image manipulation or data fabrication will be disclosed and addressed according to best practices and ethical guidelines.
7. Editorial Independence and Decision-making: - Editors base publication decisions on the merit of the research, significance, originality, and relevance to the journal's scope, avoiding bias or undue influence. Editorial decisions are transparent, communicated clearly to authors, and based on ethical considerations.
8. Compliance with Copyright and Permissions: - Authors should secure necessary permissions for using copyrighted materials and ensure compliance with copyright laws, attributing sources appropriately. The journal expects clarifications when needed regarding copyright, permissions, and licensing agreements from authors.
9. Diversity, Inclusivity, and Anti-Discrimination: - The journal promotes diversity, inclusivity, and equity in authorship, editorial board composition, and content selection. Discrimination based on race, gender, religion, nationality, or any other characteristic will not be tolerated in the publication process.
10. Ethical Oversight and Compliance: - The Editorial team addresses ethical concerns, misconduct allegations, and compliance with COPE guidelines. Any ethical violations or concerns are thoroughly investigated, documented, and addressed in accordance with established protocols.
